

HYT

PRESS REVIEW

http://www.hytwatches.com/PressReview

COOL HUNTING

About | Subscribe | Contact | Jobs | Advertise

BROWSE BY

FEATURES

CATEGORIES

POPULAR

SEARCH

VIDEO

GIFT GUIDE

INTERVIEWS

WORD OF MOUTH

LISTENUP

LINK ABOUT IT

INSTAGRAM

LOCAL

Interesting Complications in Watchmaking

The experts at HODINKEE guide us through the latest industry innovations

by CH Contributor in Design on 02 July 2013

by HODINKEE

Some seriously complicated watches have been unveiled recently—and we're not just talking perpetual calendars and minute repeaters. We're talking about entirely novel ways to count and tell time by utilizing new power systems, integrating liquids with mechanics and combining existing complications in new ways.

Having liquid inside your watch is usually a cause for concern, but last year HYT turned this dynamic on its head with their H1: using fluid to tell the time. The brand's latest release, the H2, continues this vision. Using a bright green liquid pumped through a pressurized tube with a pair of bellows to count the hours and a traditional hand to track the minutes, the H2 combines liquid and mechanical timekeeping in one cohesive package. That there is also a temperature indicator and all the functions can be controlled by the single crown makes this watch all the more impressive.

Get Cool Hunting delivered to your inbox every weekday morning

EMAIL ADDRESS

PREV
NEXT

Vanity Faith: Preachin' Ain't Easy

Six Summer Coolers

MECHANICS
DESIGN
HOROLOGY
ACCESSORIES

TECHNOLOGY
WATCHES
MENSWEAR
TIMEPIECES

WATCHMAKERS
CHRONOGRAPHS

Like 65
Share 6

Sponsored

Recent

- Auberge de l'Oumède, In The Gloaming
- Birchbox Man Summer Shopping
- "No Limits," In the Gloaming
- Gillette at (HIS)Story
- Our Perfect Vesper, In the Gloaming
- Nokia Lumia 928, In the Gloaming
- Birchbox Man Anniversary Shipment
- ARC Magazine
- Diesel Tips for Living Well

Follow Us

© 2003 - 2013 Captain Lucas, Inc. | Privacy Policy | Terms of Use | About | Subscribe | Contact | Advertise | Made in NYC